

Death of Sir Hubert Miller.

GREAT LOSS TO THE VILLAGE OF FROYLE.

The sudden death of Captain Sir Charles John Hubert Miller, eighth baronet, at Shrubbery House, Froyle, on Friday morning, means a great loss to the village of Froyle. Sir Hubert, who celebrated his 82nd birthday on September 12th, succeeded his father, the late Sir Charles Hayes Miller, to the baronetcy 72 years ago. He was educated at Eton, and later entered the army through the militia, serving in the 2nd Battalion Coldstream Guards, from which he retired in 1892 with the rank of Captain. Sir Hubert was unmarried, and the next heir to the baronetcy is a cousin, Mr. Henry Homes Miller, who resides in New Zealand.

Sir Hubert had travelled widely, and was accustomed to spend the winter months in Italy. From his travels he brought back many of the beautiful pictures and statues which adorn the churches of St. Mary and St. Joseph in Froyle. Many of the houses and cottages which he owned in Froyle are decorated with the figures of saints, a feature often noticed by visitors to the village, and one for which Sir Hubert was responsible.

A DEVOTED CHURCHMAN.

He had many interests, but undoubtedly his Church came first in his life. He was a devout Anglo-Catholic, and a life-long friend of the late Lord Halifax (father of the present Foreign Secretary), who was president of the Church Union. At the last Anglo-Catholic Congress at the White City, Sir Hubert was one of the eight Canopy Bearers. As already mentioned the churches of Froyle owe much to his generosity and love of beautiful things. In fact, it was through his initiative and generosity that the Church of St. Joseph in Lower Froyle was built. He also took a personal interest in the welfare of his tenants and especially the younger people. At Christmas time he used to entertain the boys of the Catechism, and each year he also entertained members of the Servers' Guild who attended the Patronal Festival at Froyle. He was also closely connected with the Church of All Saints at Alton, and senior trustee of the Guild of All Souls. As a lay reader in the diocese of Winchester he used to preach in churches of the diocese, and always when he was resident at Froyle he read the lessons at St. Mary's. He performed this duty for the last time the Sunday before he died.

He was Chairman of the Froyle Parish Council, and the Froyle Men's branch of the East Hants Conservative Association.

Sir Hubert was made a Magistrate in 1918 and did not retire from the Bench until a year ago. He was interested in education, and is remembered with gratitude by the elementary schools of Froyle and Holybourne. He was also a governor of Eggar's Grammar School. As a younger man Sir Hubert took an active part in amateur dramatics, retaining his interest all through his life. He was President of the Alton Operatic and Dramatic Society and is held in affectionate esteem by its members. All his life he was a great lover of gardens, and the beautiful grounds of Shrubbery House which twice a year he threw open to the public testify to his interest in horticulture.

The Burial Office and Solemn Requiem mass was celebrated on Tuesday morning in the Church of St. Mary's, Froyle, following Vespers which had been held the previous evening at 5.30. The celebrant was the Rev. C. H. Sangster (Vicar of Froyle), who was assisted by the Rev. W. E. Woodward, as deacon, and the Rev. M. G. Powell (of All Saints', Alton), as sub-deacon. The Burial Office was read by the Rev. J. R. S. Stranack (Vicar of All Saints', Alton, and Rural Dean, who was representing the Bishop of Winchester). The soloist in the service was Mr. Herbert Hall-Graham, the organist of Froyle Church, and Mr. Howard, a former organist of Froyle, now organist at All Saints' Church, Alton, was at the organ. The interment which followed the Solemn Requiem was in the family vault, where Sir Hubert's father, the late Sir Charles Hayes Miller, had been laid to rest 72 years previously.
